ABOUT ME

I grew up in a very musical family. My dad being the band master for the South African National Defence Force (SANDF) for many years and my Mom and all her Siblings were Self taught singers and Musicians.

After funerals all our Family members would gather and sing and make music as our grieving method.

I remember distinctive moments how we would sing and play the guitar around the kitchen table while Mom was cooking up a storm. My Dad on the other hand was always consumed with sheets of music scores all over the dining room table. We off course were forced to listen to the classic radio station 101.3FM while in his car.

I am a classically trained pianist with the Trinity College of Music and later Unisa as I completed music until Matric. I started writing songs from a very early age of 10 years old.

I remember being terrified of the stage. I was a little boy who had to sing in front of an entire audience in the Cape Town City Hall. I ended up doing the “performance” only because my dad bribed me with a R20 note. After that scary experience there was no turning back for me.

I am not too thrilled to take the stage but I do it because I realise there is an assignment upon my life. I’m not the best singer. Probably not that entertaining either, but one thing I know is that God called me unto Him for His Glory and to the edification of the body of Christ. I’m part of the Restoration of True Worship back into the Body of Christ. And that is my Mandate.

My Children are my biggest accomplishment and any achievement means nothing unless I don’t achieve their happiness and needs first.

Also losing my mother more than a year ago, gave me a Second Chance in life to do better, to do greater and to be the best version of me I can be according to Gods Calling upon my life.

Being the associate Pastor of Tabernacle of Worship Ministries taught me that being a pastor has nothing to do with celebrity status. Its being at service of the King and His people. Servant hood is what it is all about. Feeding God’s sheep.

Whatever I do, wherever I go JESUS YOU ARE TO BE REPRESENTED. I’m available to You!
